NIMTIM ARCHITECTS

London

Nimtim Architects' diverse back catalogue comes from the 2014-founded brand bringing clients inside the design process to make decisions and choose materials. From new-build houses to extensions and garden design, sustainability is at the forefront and each of its eco-friendly projects tends to be tinged with hints of playfulness.

PIP ARCHITECTS

Cambridge

Founded in 2014, PiP Architects is dedicated to combining sustainability and contextual integrity, specialising in one-off builds and self-builds and the renovation and extension of contemporary and heritage homes. The practice imbues every project with a sense of place, rooting each building within its setting and linking it to the history, context and aesthetic of the area.

PROCTOR & SHAW

London

Viewing architecture and interior design as synonymous, this 2019-established studio treats a building's outside and inside holistically within the design process. Creating simple, elegant, personal spaces that explore craft and how light falls, the firm works on projects from individual houses to extensions and refurbishments, all based on natural materials and sustainability.

RICHARD PARR ASSOCIATES

London/Cotswolds

With a portfolio hovering between new builds and historically significant properties, Richard Parr Associates' projects are based upon sustainability and longevity. Founded in 1994, the 'modern traditionalist' practice combines time-honoured materials and craft skills with discreet technical innovation and environmental consciousness.
